WHO WE ARE

The COHRED Group

The Council on Health Research for Development Group (COHRED Group) is a non-profit organisation that believes that national research and innovation capacities are key to improving the health of all citizens, and focuses on strengthening the governance and management of research systems of low and middle-income countries (LMICs) in their efforts to use research, science and technology and innovation to improve health, equity and development. As such, The COHRED Group partners with LMICs Governments, Institutions and Civil Society Organisations in providing technical support on research and innovation systems for health.

COHRED LAC

COHRED Latin America and The Caribbean (COHRED LAC) strives to understand the needs and perspectives of the countries in the region. We focus on the needs of ministries, councils, research institutions and civil society organisations working in research for health and those interested in developing and/or strengthening their systems for research for health.

Our staff

COHRED LAC is composed of Latin American staff located in Mexico, Brazil and Canada. The COHRED Group is a multinational and multidisciplinary team with different skills and experiences.

WHY RESEARCH FOR HEALTH?

Research for health has brought many advances and benefits to populations, such as vaccines that save lives or prevent diseases, reduction of deaths through early screening and preventive traffic measures. However, there are many problems, mainly in poor, underserved populations that still need solutions. The only way to get answers to these challenges is by performing more, better oriented and quality research.

WHAT WE OFFER

National Research for Health Systems strengthening

Research for health needs a reliable and structured system to grow. We provide support for system governance and management, strategy development and system's performance and efficiency. Our expertise and tools will guide the system to achieve its best performance.
