

Global Health Initiatives

A strong system perspective – and activities such as operational and implementation research – helps make global health programmes more effective. We offer to partner with and bring expertise to vertical programmes to enhance the impact in building the long term capacity of national research systems. See COHRED Framework and tools for strengthening national research for health systems.