

Needs of health research in developing countries: The role of Europe and of International Science and Technology Cooperation

We support efforts to prevent and treat diseases and conditions that meet three criteria: they cause widespread illness and death in developing countries; they represent the greatest inequalities in health between developed and developing countries; and they receive inadequate attention and funding. Get the file